

Introduction from the Author

This unit is the first of my rebus writing attempts. Since 1988, I have written many more, while this first edition continues to be popular.

Rebus stories give emerging readers the encouragement and success that they need. The picture offers a word clue, while establishing left to right tracking, and reinforcing the idea that words make sentences that make stories.

Duplicate the stories in this unit, one for each student. If you are working with Kindergarten, you may consider these stories as a project with a share partner or buddy.

The stories tell about the senses, things that are big and small, and the changing of the seasons. The creative activities encourage the students to express their ideas through art.

I hope you enjoy Rockin' Rebuses.
